STOP BAD BREATH

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping, pain or any disagreeable effect.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 50c, 60c. All druggists—Adv.

BRITISH ULTIMATUM SENT TO EGYPTIANS

Note Declares Country Will Not Tolerate Any Laws Handicapping Officials

London, March 7.—With war clouds hovering over the Near East, Great Britain has sent a new ultimatum to the Egyptian government, according to a Central News dispatch from Cairo today.

The new note is reported to state that Great Britain will not tolerate the introduction of any laws calculated to hamper the British administration in Egypt or so worded as to hinder British officials in their duty to protect foreigners. The note further insists upon the maintenance of British control in the Egyptian army by the presence of British troops.

EIGHT BANDITS KILL FIVE IN BUS ATTACK

Federal Troops Scour Dense Mexican Brush Country for Gang

Vera Cruz, Mex., March 7.—Federal troops were scouring the dense brush country today into which eight bandits fled after killing four men and a woman in the holdup of a huge passenger bus near Jalapa.

Thirty passengers in the bus were panic-stricken when the bandits suddenly appeared upon the highway and opened fire upon the bus without warning.

The first volley killed four passengers, one a woman. Ten other persons were wounded by the bullets which crashed through the glass windows.

Pedro Maldonado, the driver of the bus, tried to escape the gauntlet of bullets by speeding up his motor but as the machine lurched forward, the bandits fired another volley. One bullet entered Maldonado's head, killing him instantly.

Unmanned, the bus crashed into a ditch. The bandits then ordered the terrified passengers who survived to line up while one of their number searched them. The dead and wounded were also stripped of their valuables.

Capital Politicians Take Re-inventory of Hoover; Find He Has Learned Game

Recent Senate Questionnaire and Flood Control Committee Quiz Do Much To Convince Washington That Secretary's Political Education Has Progressed Considerably

Washington, March 5.—For a good country in the throes of economic and business reconstruction, was unusually great that he received voice in both Republican and Democratic primaries and conventions—an event almost unprecedented in contemporary politics. ## LATE SULTAN'S HEIRS TO STOP "MASSACRE" FILM

Paris, Heirs of Abdul Hamid, late sultan of Turkey, are asking the court to order a film entitled "Jehannu le Double" on the allegation it wrongs the memory of the children of his predecessor on the throne, Mourad V. They contend the three daughters and son of Mourad V all died a natural death and that the son left no children.

The judge has ordered a showing of the picture so that a ban may be verified whether it depicts Abdul Hamid as the bloodthirsty sovereign seeking to wipe out the line of a previous dynasty by murder.

Evening Post and author of "Early Battles of the Jackson Period," will speak on the life of Andrew Jackson from the historical angle.

Mrs. Alfred J. Bruesau, president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will pay tribute to General Jackson from her standpoint in conducting the statue into a solid union.

Velma, in Haze of Smoke, Tells Own Story of Murder

"You still have the memory of Eddie?" "Certainly the answer came, 'I do'." "There didn't seem much else to say. The prison clock ticked loudly. The big, kindly sheriff took out his handkerchief and blew his nose. 'Come, Velma,' he said, gently. 'You've got to get ready for Marionville.' And America's latest jazz age singer began packing up her belongings, her powder, puff, lipstick, mirror and those other little things girls carry in vanity cases. "Was the sheriff premeditated? Did you have the idea of killing him in the back of your head?" "No, it all happened so suddenly. We had quarreled. The word led to another. He struck me. I picked up the claw hammer and hit him on the head. He fell back on the bed. I sat down again. He fell to the floor. I sat my head. I hit him again and again. Finally he lay quiet. I went to the dresser table and took a ball of twine and tied his hands and feet so that he could not come back after me. I used my finger nail clipper to cut the twine. I had bought the twine that afternoon in Marionville to fix some draperies. A saw a bandana handkerchief on the dresser table and I tied it across his face. "Velma's slim form quivered as she talked. She inhaled her cigarette. She paused. Evidently the subject nauseated her. She seemed in a daze. She came out of it and replied to this question. "What was the quarrel about?" "Quarrel about girl?" "About my girl friend, Mabel Young." "It was to the home of Miss Young, a pretty 22-year-old stenographer in Cleveland, that Velma flashed in her green roadster immediately after the crime. Her husband, Velma said, had been intercepting letters she had received from Mabel and they had quarreled about that. Velma said Mabel was her sister's girl chum. "I loved her as a sister." "Velma accepted another cigarette. "Q—Does your conscience now trouble you? A—Every so often. I do. I think of it all the time. I can hardly sleep some nights. I have nightmares and the terrible thing that happened in our bungalow that night afternoons often comes to me in my sleep and I am driven frantic. "When this reporter first asked Velma why she killed her husband, she said, "He said something that made me mad. He was condemning Mabel Young." "Velma said the reason she liked Mabel was because "she was older than I was and she was pleasant and quiet. I used to get quite lonesome for her." "Frequently Struck Her "Q—You are hot tempered, are you not?" "A—Yes, but not as hot tempered as my husband was. "She charged that West had frequently struck her. The first time he hit her, she declared, was while they were on their honeymoon only a month after they had eloped. She said she had witnesses to that. "Velma was asked just how sophisticated she was. For instance, did she like liquor as well as she enjoyed cigarette?" "I used to drink a little at parties," she admitted. "I would take about six or eight drinks a night at a party." "She has read the newspapers a great deal since she has been incarcerated. She was intensely interested in the Ruth Snyder case. She thought it was a "blame" that the King Sigh authorities would not allow Ruth to wear the dress she wanted to wear when she was to be executed. "Mr. Velma, had often visualized herself as in Ruth Snyder's place. "I hope when I get to the Marionville Reformatory that I will be put among the most refined of the prisoners," she said. "I want to work and forget. I want to settle down. I'd like to get an outdoor job. My lawyers tell me they need a woman to drive a light delivery truck and I'm going to try for that job. "She's going to take her banjo like- like along. She wondered if they would take a gray for coat over from her and wear blue. She was down instead of the black knee-length silk dresses she now wears. "Do you think you'll spend all your life in prison?" she was asked. "No, I think I'll get out in about eight years. At least that's what my lawyers think. I'm not worrying about that, though. I have committed a crime and I think I should be punished. If I could I would not walk out a free woman because I don't believe it would be right. I must pay the price."

MEMORIAL PAVING PLANS ARE FINISHED

Hearing on Surveyor's Report Fixed for Friday, March 23

Continued From Page One. stand in the way of the plans being officially approved. To Share Cost The entire cost of the improvement will be borne by city and county, under an agreement reached some time ago. The surveyor's estimate places the city's share of the cost at $36,812.30 for asphalt paving and the county's share at $1,857.70. The reinforced concrete estimate on the city's share is $26,114.55 and the county's $8,885.45. Under arrangements agreed upon by city and county officials, the county is to bear the cost of grading, drainage, engineering and bridge and culvert construction. The boulevard is to be a double line thoroughfare extending a distance of 1,932 feet through city park land from the west line of the Vernon Heights addition to the Marion-Deleware road. The two thoroughfares, each 20 feet in width with a 25-foot parkway in the center, will run through the center of a strip of park land 100 feet in width, to be appropriated as a right-of-way. Parkway To Be Graded Estimates of the cost include lawn grading of the center parkway as well as the land at the sides of the boulevard. The memorial boulevard is the main part of an improvement project which also includes a single line thoroughfare at the east, connecting with the Vernon Heights addition. The eastern section is to be constructed of macadam, according to plans tentatively outlined. Both sections were considered as one improvement project last year but later were separated following conference of city and county officials. County Surveyor Leavens is now working on plans for the east section and expects to submit his report to the commissioners within a few days. A separate contract will be let for the macadam thoroughfare. It is being planned so that it can later be converted into a double-line boulevard to conform with the memorial section.

CITES BRUTALITY IN SOFT COAL FIELDS

President of United Mine Workers Tells Senate Committee of Conditions

Continued From Page One. American people are concerned in tariff and immigration laws. "Urges Four Remedies "He urged the following remedies to stabilize the highly over developed coal industry: "1.—The uneconomic mines must be closed and closed for good. "2.—Unscientific freight rates must be wiped off the tariff books. "3.—The perpetual strife and conflict within the industry must give way to labor relations on a par with those which have achieved comparative peace in other trades. "4.—Above all the American constitution must mean what it says in every coal field in America." President Coolidge in 1925 refused to interfere to compel soft coal operators to live up to the Jacksonville wage agreement with the miners, Lewis also revealed. Lewis appealed to the president to use his influence "to maintain the morality and integrity" of the agreement.

Go to Courts, Upr

President Coolidge in reply urged the miners to take their grievances to the courts, saying "you would perform a distinct public service by getting an authoritative court decision on this subject," Lewis said. "The union has filed no suits. The Jacksonville agreement was negotiated in 1924. It provided a basic wage of $7.50 daily for miners. When it expired last March 31, the operators in western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana refused to renew it and the present strike resulted. The unpublished correspondence between President Coolidge and Lewis was read to the committee at the request of Senator Wagner, Democrat of New York. Lewis applied to the president after he charged the "largest coal producing groups in the nation—the Pittsburgh Coal Co., the Consolidated Coal Co., the Bethlehem Mines Corporation and the coal interests of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railroad—were trampling upon and dishonoring their wage agreements." "Their actions have been destructive of all confidence between employer and employee and constitute an unwarranted, indefensible blow at the universally recognized principle of collective bargaining," Lewis wrote. "Mr. Coolidge replied that while federal agencies were instrumental in bringing about the Jacksonville meeting, "the government can in no sense be considered a party to the contract." "I profoundly deplore the breaking of any contract, whenever this is true, especially as the faithful compliance with agreements between employers and employees is the sole hope of collective bargaining—a principle now accepted in American life," said the president. Lewis cited numerous precedents for federal intervention in coal disputes. "Why didn't the union go into the courts?" asked Senator Couzens, Republican of Michigan. "We found no practical means" replied Lewis. "We would have been compelled to put up a tremendous bond and we didn't have it."

WOMAN FINED

Upon her plea of punity to a charge of contributing $1 worth of coal that had been stolen from the Erie railroad Mrs. Edith O'Donoghue, Erie, was fined $5 and costs by Municipal Judge William H. Martin this morning. The costs were suspended by the court on condition that she pay the $5 due and the cost of the coal. Mrs. O'Donoghue was arrested on an affidavit filed in Municipal Court by F. E. Taylor, captain of the Erie police, who said the coal was found at her home. "SURPRISE NEIGHBOR" "Haven't you had experience with the courts recently?" asked Mayor. "We have been harassed tremendously by the courts," replied Lewis. "No other labor group has been treated so unfairly."

WILL NEVER MARRY

Velma said she would not have been in her present predicament had her environment been different. Had she, for instance, used her ability as a singer in some church choir instead of at gin parties, things might have been different. She remarked at this point that she got out of jail in eight years she will be twenty-nine. "Will you marry again?" "I never will," she declared emphatically. "Is it true that you are a man hater?" "No, if it was I never would have married Eddie."

Daily Proverb—"The dead can not defend, therefore speak well of the dead."

Just an even two weeks till the coming of spring. Let's be happy.

Naturally soviet Russia favors disarmament, which would make the overthrowing of all governments easier of accomplishment.

It is beginning to dawn upon the country that recent murder and other criminal trials have been no more the trials of the criminals accused than of the American jury system.

A New York playwright suggests that the critics should write plays of their own rather than criticize those of others. The idea is not half bad. In any event, the public couldn't possibly suffer by reason of its adoption.

Velma West has been sentenced to prison for life, which will mean ten years' imprisonment before she is subject to parole. Even at that, it's an awful price to pay for an afternoon at cards.

The wires tell us that the "Save the Union" committee of the Civil Liberties union is active in the coal trouble at Pittston. The Lord help our union if its salvation depends upon the efforts of the "Save the Union" committee or any other committee of the Civil Liberties union!

It begins to look as though the record of the Madison Square Garden convention as an endurance meet may be smashed to smithereens when Democracy gets to going down in Houston.

Representative Howard, of Nebraska, has drafted for introduction a bill providing for prison sentences for members of congress who engage in lobbying within two years of their retirement from the senate or the house. Have a heart, Edgar! The lame ducks must have some way of keeping the wolf from the door!

Powers Haggood and his bride, the latter the former secretary of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee, were committed to the Lucas county jail over in Pennsylvania, charged by the mayor of Pittston with "inciting, provoking and encouraging a riot." Wherever there is a chance for violence or other action against government, there the "patriots" of the Haggood stripe may be anticipated to be on hand.

That Canadian Taxi Murder.

If Doris McDonald, the young American woman sentenced to be executed in Montreal this month for the murder of a taxi driver which was deliberately planned for the purpose of getting his money and executed in cold blood, escapes the death penalty, it will be for the sole reason that she is a woman, and that, in law and justice, is no reason at all. There is nothing more vicious than a vicious woman, and some of the vilest and most atrocious crimes which have stained the pages of history have been those of women. How any court can commute the death sentence of this woman, by whose hand the life of the taxi driver was taken, and at the same time permit the execution of her husband to proceed, is beyond understanding, and yet that is the course sought by those endeavoring to save her from the gallows, not one of them having made the slightest attempt to save the life of the husband.

If the authorities are to be credited, the two and their companion in their murdering enterprise for gain are notorious crooks. The trail of the two McDonalds is marked by forgeries committed in both this country and Canada. It is stated by the arresting officers that McDonald admitted that he had escaped from the Alabama penitentiary and put out $10,000 in forged government checks and also Continental Motors checks. But the wife was not the passive tool of the husband. It has been testified that she was the active agent of death in the present case. It was getting too warm for the McDonalds up in Montreal, where they had uttered a $200 check. They hired the taxi driver to drive them to the country. By subterfuge, they got the driver out of the car, planning, according to the woman's story, as detailed by the arresting officer, to hit him over the head with a beer bottle, which they had taken along for the purpose, and steal his car. The driver broke away and tried to escape, but was held up. The woman went through one side of his clothes and secured $75. When the driver attempted to resist, she grabbed a revolver from one of her companions and shot him four times. The trio endeavored to bribe a customs officer to let them cross the line into this country, but he refused to be bribed, so the three drove back to Montreal, where they abandoned their car. There the companion of the two McDonalds was given $50 and told to keep his mouth shut, being threatened by the woman with death by "the gun" if he "squawked." The McDonalds then escaped into this country and their arrests followed.

To commute the sentence of the wife and execute the husband, upon such a showing, would be a travesty on justice of which it is hard to believe the Canadian authorities capable.

The Walsh Candidacy.

There is no question but what the candidacy of Governor Al Smith, of New York, for the Democratic presidential nomination has been most decidedly complicated by the injection of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, into the race. We say "injected" for the reason that the plan to enter his name in the California, South Dakota and Wisconsin primaries is manifestly that of Mr. McAdoo and may be taken as further evidence, were any needed, that the unity aroused by the bitter struggle in New York, four years ago, still rankles in the breast of Mr. McAdoo. We do not take it that much difficulty was experienced in securing the consent of the Montana senator to the use of his name in the primaries indicated. It has been quite generally realized for some time that Mr. Walsh had succumbed to the attack of the presidential bee. But just the same, the strategy of Mr. McAdoo will have to be recognized, for the play of the Montana senator would naturally have been that of a dark horse. But his hat is in the ring, so let us deal with the situation frankly.

The candidacy of Governor Smith, as a wet Catholic, was not advanced by the entrance of Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, a wet Protestant, into the race. Naturally, Mr. Reed may be expected to get his full share of the wet Protestant influence in the Houston convention. And now Mr. McAdoo has secured the entrance of Senator Walsh, a dry Catholic, into the contest, with the expectation of getting the dry Catholic influence in the same national gathering.

Any way one may look at the thing it's good strategy from the McAdoo viewpoint, for there can be no question of the prominence of Walsh in the councils of Democracy. We say that it's good strategy from the McAdoo standpoint, meaning, of course, that it's good strategy for the exercising of a spirit of revenge. It will hardly pass, however, as good strategy looking to party harmony and success at the polls next November.

Broussa, a Mohammedan city of 135,000 in Turkey, had but one robbery last year, and it is said that storekeepers do not even close the doors of their business places when they go home to their meals. And yet we sent missionaries to Turkey!

New West Center Street Lights.

If the new lighting system authorized for west Center street performs up to promise, we believe the action taken by the city council Monday night will reap the approval of the people of Marion.

The effect of the cluster lights now in use is a very pleasing one, both day and night. Purely as an appeal to the eye, the present system has points of superiority over the one to be installed. True, we are told that the new lights will be more artistic than those at the south front of the courthouse and those installed on west Center street from the Hocking Valley right-of-way to Davis street, which is to be hoped, as it is a matter of some difficulty to discern anything particularly artistic about them.

But if the new lights will give three times the illumination afforded by those in use, the change is justified regardless of the additional $1,000 expense to be incurred annually so long as they are operated at the present rate schedule. The cluster system, while very pleasing as one views a thoroughfare lighted by it, is not an effective one for either foot or vehicular traffic. The clusters are too dim, a fault which could not be altogether obviated were larger lights used in them, as they are not sufficiently high to throw their light to the distance necessary to get the degree of illumination desired. And there is another benefit to be derived from the elevation of the lights and the substitution of heavy iron poles for the thin material used in the cluster columns—that of the elimination of a lot of damage. The lights being higher, there will not be so much breakage of globes as there is at present, and the new poles will not be damaged and dented and broken as are the present pedestals.

All in all, the change appears to be one which will prove very satisfactory.

"Since the advent of the short skirt," says the Florida Times-Union, "merchants are having to sweep in front of their stores at least three times a day." If the paragraph is based on fact, we will have to credit the southern merchants with a degree of enterprise which might well be emulated in every city and village of the land.

Of course, it's understood that Mr. Mencken's admission, that Lincoln was an intelligent man, doesn't preclude the possibility of a further admission by Mr. Mencken that there has been marked intellectual development in this country in the last sixty years.

The street costume for men which evoked the greatest enthusiasm at the annual convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers, up in Chicago, consisted of a three-button model suit of a reddish brown mixture in which tints of lavender and bronze were intermingled, a canary colored shirt with two-inch-wide white stripes, a black and white checkered tie and a cream-colored hat. It's our guess that minstrel show parades are going to attract mighty little attention, the coming fall.

Vagrant Verse.

SHORES I SHALL NOT SEE.

Thinking of shores that I shall never see,
And things that I would know, but am far from—
By Time and briefness, treasures locked from me
In unknown tongue, or human bosom hid,
Knowing how unsure is all my knowledge, hold
To sloven memory and to cheated sense,
And to what majesty of stars I hold
My little candle of experience.
In the vast night, in the untraveled night,
I sigh and seek. And there is answer none,
But in the silence that sure pressure slight
Of your heart beating close against my own.
O Love, Love, where in you is any bound?
Foot, I, to seek, who have infinitely found.

A GOOD WAY TO RUIN A PRIVATE PARTY.

Business Worries Hurtful.

BY ROYAL S. COVELAND, M. D.
A friend of mine says that, "A night of worry is more wearing than a month of work."
This is a saying entitled to be immortalized among the classics.

The blackest and most trying hour possible to experience is that period in the middle of the night when you awake from slumber and think over your affairs. No matter what may have been your sentiments when you went to bed, your outlook on life at 3 o'clock in the morning verges on despair. The morning after a single hour's experience of this sort may turn out to be bright and cheerful. You look back upon the worries of 3 o'clock as something to be laughed at and forgotten. The life that seemed so hopeless in the night is after all worth living.

But when you go to bed full of worries and anxieties, and stay awake all night nursing these anxieties, you get out of bed in the morning a perfect wreck. Your slumber is fitful. The few times you fall asleep you are dreaming terrible things. You toss about in bed and wear out every particle of nervous energy you have in your reserve supply.

After such a night as this, you get up to find yourself unfit for the burdens of the day. It is indeed true that a night of this sort is more wearing than a month of work.

What are the causes of night worries? You may have rather a cheerful outlook on life in the daytime. Why should you dream, lose your self-confidence, imagine you have lost your best friend and that you are going to the poorhouse? What's wrong with you, anyhow?

You should go to bed to sleep. That is no place to rearrange your business affairs or to make plans for the future. The bed and the bedroom should be arranged with reference to quiet, health-promoting sleep.

Ordinarily it is not difficult to find the reason for fitful sleep. If you are in the habit of sleeping poorly and waking up in the middle of the night to spend an hour or two in worrying, make a survey of yourself and your surroundings.

Let us consider first your own self. Do you make it a practice to eat a lot of food just before retiring. Indigestible food that will cause your stomach to rebel three or four hours after you get to bed? If this has been your custom, you should reform. Be satisfied with the full meal you had at 7 o'clock and let that last you until morning.

On the other hand it may be that you are hungry and need just a bite to eat before you go to sleep. A glass of milk spiked slowly, or a few crackers may take the blood to your stomach instead of leaving it to flood the brain and excite your thoughts.

Many persons who are constipated are likely to have broken sleep. This is a condition which should be corrected.

The bed clothing must not be overwarm or overheavy. If you are too hot in the night, your sleep is sure to be disturbed.

There must be an abundance of air in the room. The room should be dark and cool.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dinner Stories.

"My wife dropped a diamond ring in that glue—now as one gentleman to a plumber, which will be cheaper, for you to get it out, or for me to buy another?"

"When I got married," said little Bess, "I'm going to marry a minister and then it won't cost anything for a wedding fee."

"When I got married," returned her playmate, "I'm going to marry a lawyer, and then it won't cost anything for a divorce."

Joe—"What makes you think that new reporter is silly?"

Jim—"Well, the editor told him to go over and cover the bathing beauties and the dandied foot took a blanket with him."

She—"I've given up candy during Lent." He—"That's too bad. I've just brought you a box."

She—"In that case I'll give up cigars instead."

Praise God with the sound of the trumpet; Praise Him with the psalm and harp; Praise Him with the timbrel and dance; praise Him with strings and instruments and organs. Praise Him upon the loud cymbals; praise Him upon the loud sounding cymbals.—Psalm 150:3, 4, 5.

Prayer—Blessed be the Lord God—forever and ever.

Editorial Opinion.

TEN YEARS AFTER.

This tenth anniversary year of the armistice has opened with a rather startling succession of conquests by the Grim Reaper among the actors who played star parts in the tragic drama of the World war. Within a few days of one another Asquith and Lloyd George, in Great Britain; Lichnowsky, in Germany; and Diaz, in Italy, have been gathered to that bourne which knows not either the triumphs of statesmanship or the glamour of the battlefield. Time, the unconquerable, takes remorseless toll among the men on whose words or deeds the world, a bare decade ago, hung breathlessly.

There is no realm of World war activity or any theater of its operations, military or political, that has not been so bereft in the interval of peace. Imperial figures, like Mohammed, of Turkey; Francis Joseph, of Austria; and Nicholas, of Russia, vanished from the scene while the smoke of strife still hung like a devastating pall over Europe. Kitchener, of Khartoum, was a war casualty. Lord French, first commander-in-chief of the British army in France, "went west" before Marshal Haig. M. Delcasse, German's pre-war bete noir at Paris, left the embittered scene following the armistice about the time Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, the fatherland's ill-starred chancellor, took his place in the ages along with his immortal "scrap of paper," the war's most blinding hallucination.

America's overshadowing luminary, Woodrow Wilson, broken and broken-hearted, is gone, first of the "big four" of Versailles to explore the dust. If his admirers guess aright, Wilson's alone will be the merit of having built, at Geneva, a monument destined to circumvent the ravages of the years.

But an irony of fate, from which the superstitious may derive theories or derive consolation, it is the masterful personages of war-time Germany among whom the necrologist finds the principal death of material. Wilhelm II, the exile of Doorn, still flourishes, though no longer the monarch of all he surveys. Tirpitz, architect-in-chief of submarine "cheerfulness," lives amid memories that must fill him with vastly mixed emotions. Ludendorff, the great general staff's strategic genius, survives, a sour and sullen soldier. And Field Marshal Hindenburg is president of the German republic, hale, hearty and world-respected.—Washington Star.

GOOD MANNERS ON THE ROAD.

Great Britain, too, is seeking to promote courtesy on the "King's" highway. To cut down the great number of traffic accidents by cultivating a spirit of good-fellowship on the road, the Safety First society has organized a Road Fellowship league. The scheme is to get people to pledge themselves to behave with sense and consideration on their walks and rides abroad.

Motorists who join will receive a badge, a white triangle on a red and blue background, which is to be displayed prominently on the car. When a scared pedestrian sees this sign on a car speeding toward him, he will be assured that the driver is a good fellow. Even if the man on foot is struck by the car, he will know the driver didn't mean it.

A code of correct and courteous behavior for both motorists and pedestrians is furnished to league members to be memorized and obeyed. In the advice for walkers is the rule, "Keep cool if caught in traffic and avoid dodging." This will be a hard rule to follow when cars are rushing on both sides and foot men are rapidly disappearing. But if league membership will help the pedestrian to keep a serene mind in heavy traffic, the Road Fellowship league will have justified its existence.—New York Times.

Twenty Years Ago.

This day was Saturday. It was decided to divide the battle fleet, the fourth division to go to Manila under Rear Admiral Sperry.

The British ship, "Beta," known as "The Ship of a Hundred Lives" from the number of storms she had battled in forty-five years, was finally wrecked at Turk's island, her crew of twenty-nine escaping.

Manager O'Day reported that he had signed nineteen players for the local professional ball team—Catchers Laughlin, Fogarty and Ketter; Pitchers Downey, O'Don, Mootter, Hardy and Seely; Infielders O'Day, Thomas, Donaldson, Flinn, Dardo, Devore, Hickman, Wolfe and Wilson; and Outfielders Cherry and Quinn.

The underfoot ventilating systems in the public school buildings were being taken out. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Homer Winttingham, of Mark street.

It was reported that Anna Gould and the Prince de Sagen had been married. A marriage license was issued to Dora Mattilda Zieg and Daniel Herman Flach, both of Green Camp.

John F. Stevens, former chief engineer of the Panama canal, predicted that it would prove a failure.

Tag day "for charity" brought $700. The Star reported the birth of a daughter at Youngstown, Thursday, to Mr. and Mrs. A. Lutz.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fox, residing five miles northeast of Marion. The Marion Municipal league held a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. building and began its campaign of education looking to a local-option election.

Mountain Cold.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"For many years I have read your articles, but do not recall having seen anything pertaining to the question why high altitudes are colder than on the earth's surface, which is farther away from the sun.—E. S. Cleveland."

The sun's rays are not colder, but—to an infinitesimal degree—hotter at high altitudes than at sea level. You get "sunburned" more quickly on a mountain top than in a valley. The temperature shown by a thermometer exposed to the solar rays and protected from wind is higher on Mount Blanc than in the valley of Chamouni. But the air feels cold around you on the mountain. The reason is that the thin atmosphere at great heights presents less obstruction to the passage of the solar radiation. The air on the mountain, absorbing relatively little heat from the sunbeams, remains itself at a lower temperature than the air below.

But, you say, why does not the snow melt on the mountain top, as it does in the valley? For the same reason that you, yourself, when on the mountain feel cold, notwithstanding the blazing sunshine. Especially if you are either in the shade of a rock or of a towering "sacred" or exposed to a breeze. In the full sunshine, the surface of the great Alpine snow fields may melt a little, but the melting does not penetrate far, for the brilliant white surface reflects back the sun's rays too swiftly to permit an accumulation of heat. The glare from the snow is almost unbearable and sometimes produces temporary blindness.

When the sun sets on high, snow-clad mountains, the cold of space seems to drop down upon you like a freezing blanket, abstracting the heat from the marrow of your bones. The ice cracks with the terrific cold, the stars seem to be shivering in a frozen heaven. The spend-thrift air has parted with the solar heat as fast as it received it, and now has nothing to spare for you. But on the contrary, draws mercilessly upon your limited supply of bodily heat. If you can not find a refuge hut your blood may be ice before the morning.

And yet, all night in the valley a few miles below the delicate Alpine flowers are sleeping in the genial air, and people may even feel oppressed by the heat. The valley during the daylight received no more heat from the sun than did the mountain heights, but it had the immense advantage of being enveloped in a denser atmosphere, which not only became warmed by the passing rays, but received an accession of temperature from the "low-grade" or "long-wave" radiation shed from the heated ground. And if the night happens to be cloudy, the lower air parts all the more slowly with its accumulated heat, for then it is screened off by the clouds from that insatiable consumer and dissipator of heat—"open space."

You get a striking evidence of the effect of the thing air of the great heights in preventing accumulation of solar heat when you look at a vast glacier hanging down the mountain slopes, white and glittering in the sunshine there, but shivering away and ending, sometimes abruptly in a huge precipice of ice, when it has descended a few thousand feet of vertical elevation, and entered the region of the denser air where heat is stored up as in a reservoir.

On the mountain it is as hard as rock, splintering like glass, in the valley it turns into a baby river, with waters made golden with mud ground out of the rocks by the slow, heavy creeping of the glacier in its cold mountain bed. The foot of the glacier, where it melts away, is not more than one twenty-millionth part farther from the sun than is its head on the heights, so that there can be no perceptible difference of temperature arising from increase of distance. It is the blanket of air that performs the seeming miracle.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Paris Facts and Fancies.

BY O. D. MINTYRE.

Paris, March 7.—The change in time some of our other makes most Americans awake tonight for a look or so, but there is a pleasant compensation for this annoyance in the fact that Paris swim up from its sluggish well of sleep. It leaps to life like a trout to the surface.

The low-hung clouds change swiftly from blue to yellow to heliotrope and then to that pink glow that has inspired innumerable enraptured poets. Wisps of smoke curl from a million chimneys pots bristling on the roof tops. Ponderous doors open with a thunder of bangs. Shop shutters are lifted with a clatter. Head boys hurl yard-long loaves to the pavement from tri-cle wagoons. Early workers seem to be waiting, and the sidewalk trees are alive with chirping birds, a cardinal being the clear call to early worship. Dawn comes like frosty starlight. And the east is slashed with fire.

The town bubbles in the early morning as though it might be an unquenched spring of gaiety—colish and a bit untidy, but contagiously stimulating. You feel an eagerness to do something foolish—like turning a hand-spring in Place Vendome or playing tag with a gendarme.

From my window is a medley of impressions. A priest in one of those pancake flat deflates bicycles with his robe ends straight out in the breeze. A black-aproned wine waiter is placing blue seltzer bottles on the sidewalk tables. An old woman whose back is bent with a load of firewood trudges along.

A glazier with his shoulder pack of glass, rings a dinner bell to announce his presence. Perky midwives are delivering packages from millinery and dressmaking establishments. Coal and wood carts with belled horses driven tandem. A swarthy man in a turban. Men who wear black gloves and white vest edging.

Near my hotel at intervals there is a rising hum of shouting that reaches a din. It comes from school children unloosed for recess play. It is typical of the Parisian zest for frolic. And it seems to be just as unrestrained among the elders. Life is a big whoop in the morning, and it is only at night when it is shattered and barred that Paris seems brooding and sad.

Add similes: As futile as the effort of an American to open a French window.

At a quaint luncheon place today there was an example of French unwillingness to change customs. When the place opened nineteen years ago it had twenty-one delighted patrons. Today the proprietor will never serve more than twenty-one. Bribery or cajolery is useless. The method is first come, first served, and there is double the favored number turned away. One is not permitted to order, but must take what is served, and this proves a constant surprise. To the French the cocktail has always been an anathema, although it is served in most places, but not here. The customary white wine is served with fish and red with meat, but only a single glass to each. You can not buy or beg more. You are elegantly fed, but you are given the impression the proprietor is condescending to serve you.

The Paris of great value at low prices is no more. Clothes for men and women are about as expensive as in New York, and custom duty makes them a luxury. The tariff at first-class hotels is the same as in New York, plus the various taxes, and the laughable ten per cent. exacted for tipping. The only thing remaining cheap is the fare and the impertinence you suffer at the hands of the drivers does not compensate you for the cheapness. The shops are empty although general financial conditions in France are good.

It was interesting to watch what is comparable to our city salesman call on the proprietor of a barber shop. He shook hands all around, discussed family matters with each, offered cigarettes, told a story or so, and I rather expected them to snap into a walk. Finally he touched upon the need of barber supplies, and finding no need, shook hands all around again and departed. A good time was had by all.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

More than 700 communities now conduct week day religious education. Students are released at periods from the regular schools for this purpose. Leaders in the International Council of Religious Education, recently meeting in Chicago, got down to bed rock. It was agreed that "the problem of so many of the evils of the day can be solved by the systematic and modern religious instructions of children and youth."

Progress demands nothing so much as initiative—the power to start something and the power of adaptation to changing conditions. Down in the Virgin Islands in the West Indies, now owned by the United States, this writer heard the old residents complain that prohibition had ruined their country. The growing of sugar cane for the manufacture of rum had long been the principal industry. But here is a country of almost perfect climate, fertile soil and full of opportunity for development. Because the rum business was gone the easy going inhabitants sat down and wept.

The same soil and the same sun and the same brains can always bring back the same kind of prosperity that seems to have gone forever.

While there is much talk about European trade and much talk in congress about merchant ships, something is happening out on the Pacific. If we don't watch out British and Japanese ships will carry all the business between the United States and the 600,000,000 people who live on the other side of the great western ocean. When the day comes that American ships are no longer seen on the Pacific the supremacy of the United States as a world power will be done. And in the meantime if we are going to have good business and good times in America we must open more markets all over the world.

Strange that we have not learned that human improvement and civilization and such happiness as the race has attained is the product of restraint and self control. There is much talk these days about freedom and personal liberty to do exactly as one pleases—and the people who were here to enjoy it lived in caves, ate raw meat, and ambushed each other with stone hatchets. They had this boasted liberty.

Nothing Cleans Teeth LIKE POWDER

Just ask your dentist

If you want the whitest, cleanest teeth possible, just try this: the oldest and most reliable way of all to clean teeth.

For over sixty years, since 1866, dentists everywhere have prescribed Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder because of its superior cleansing qualities.

As it is only the powder part of a dentifrice that cleans, naturally a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER cleans best. That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know, always uses powder.

Teeth simply cannot remain dull and firm coated when Dr. Lyon's is used. While it removes all the stain and tartar and actually polishes the teeth as it cleans, it cannot possibly scratch or injure the most delicate enamel, as SIXTY YEARS of constant use has shown.

Dr. Lyon's has stood the test of time, as nothing else could. Thousands have found it safe, reliable and unequalled throughout an entire lifetime of constant use. It is the only dentifrice old enough to prove it can preserve teeth for life.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN, and clean teeth mean firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay.

Its rich, cleansing properties penetrate every pit and crevice, reaching every particle of food, or foreign matter, lodged therein. Thus, it leaves the mouth sweet and clean, the breath pure, and its cooling refreshing after taste is delightful.

Brush your teeth twice each day with Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder; consult your dentist regularly to be on the safe side and you will be doing the very utmost to protect your teeth. Make this test if you want whiter, cleaner and more beautiful teeth.

You can get Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder at any drug store, or toilet goods counter. You will find it not only more efficient, but it costs less than most anything else you can use.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS WILL HONOR TEACHER

"Martin Verburg Day" Planned by Group at First Presbyterian Church

Sunday, March 18, has been designated as "Martin Verburg Day" by the Men's Bible Class of the First Presbyterian Church, which Mr. Verburg has served as teacher during the years that he has been located here as secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Having resigned his position at the Y. M. C. A. recently, he plans to move to another city and the event of March 18 has been planned in his honor.

Notice has been sent to all members of the class and it is expected that a record attendance will be registered for the day. Arrangements are being made to have a group photograph taken following the class session.

During Mr. Verburg's time as teacher the class has grown in membership and now ranks as one of the city's largest and most active Sunday school organizations.

Attendance Record
Attendance last Sunday, established what is reported to be the highest mark in the history of the class, 133 men being present. The weekly attendance has been increasing steadily during the last few weeks and is more than double the average in December. This is largely the result of a unique and unusually successful membership campaign started about Jan. 1.

The membership drive, held under the direction of a committee consisting of J. W. Hunsaker, F. L. Alexander and William Huston, is planned to result in an automobile race. Ten teams are entered with each captain listed as the pilot of a popular make of automobile.

The team captains and their automobiles in the last report were as follows: H. G. Williams, 790 miles; H. L. Stock, 740; R. S. Ferguson, 720; F. L. Williams, 580; R. L. Gitting, 590; W. C. Phillips, 580; C. E. Davidson, 450; C. H. Bauer, 410; Joe Snow, 410; T. M. Cunningham, 350.

John H. Hartman, local attorney, will teach the lesson at next Sunday's session of the class, it was announced today.

ON DRAMATIC BOARD

Columbus, March 7—Charles M. Schoenlaub, of S. Prospect-st., Marion, is a member of the newly organized Dramatic Board at Ohio State University.

The Dramatic Board is composed of presidents and business managers of recognized dramatic organizations on the university campus and four faculty members. Schoenlaub is business manager of the Men's Glee Club which will appear in Marion for a concert April 6.

Schoenlaub is a senior and is enrolled in the College of Engineering.

NEMESIS OF ENGINEERS TO BLOW SKYWARD

A half million dollar highway project, the largest ever attempted by the Ohio State Highway Department, will connect two cities, open hundreds of acres of fertile farm land to the outside world and be the connecting link in the great East Liverpool-Marion highway.

To do this, "The Narrows," a cut of Belmont County hills which sweep down to the very edge of the broad Ohio River, will have to be literally blown away at a cost of $500,000, and eight million cubic feet of earth scraped from the low mountain range. The job will be done this summer and will connect with a vehicular highway, the first communication between this city and Foxhall.

No. 1 shows a view of the Narrows where half the mountain will be blown away. No. 2, the only means of transportation between the Narrows and Bellaire. No. 3 shows the 8,000,000 cubic feet of rock which will be sent skyward.

Conservative Element Predominates In Men's Spring Styles, Merchants Claim

MARION clothing merchants are among the first local citizens to prepare for the arrival of spring and to assist the male portion of the population in putting on its customary new frock.

In practically all of the clothing stores here, spring attire of a wide variety is to be found in show windows and on well-stocked shelves and counters.

There is something to suit every taste for male adornment, whether it be the youth who goes in for colors and designs which "knock 'em cold" or the man of more mature years who has no desire to stand out prominently on fashion's boulevard.

As a rule, however, the conservative element predominates in the stocks of spring merchandise now on display. The youthful extremist still has opportunity to bedeck himself in flashy garments, but hardly to as pronounced a degree as at other times during the last few years.

Tempting Display

The entire display is tempting and few men of Marion, young or old, will be able to resist welcoming spring with a new and immaculate frock if they have the price or sufficient credit.

Price will not stop many who have the desire, for all of the local stores have merchandise to suit pocketbooks of varying proportions. Merchants state that it will be possible to line up with the ranks of the well-dressed this spring for a very reasonable figure.

And then there is that other argument, which can hardly be downed, that it is always economy to put up a good front, regardless of the cost.

Pertinent Details

Inquiry made today among local clothiers resulted in the collection of a number of pertinent details regarding the attire which should be worn by men who aim to be up to the minute or at least not any great distance behind the procession.

The survey also showed that in the stocks of goods available here there is a variety of selection which will equip either the man who aspires to the utmost in swank or the one who goes only half way.

Tans, Greys Good

Tans and greys are the prevailing colors among spring suit models, which generally are of conservative design. Those tent-like trousers which formerly gave youthful Americans the appearance of walking floor sacks or something of the kind no longer are in evidence.

Both coats and trousers are of medium cut, the coat length averaging about 29 inches.

Coats are of both the two and three-button variety with the former designated by fashion experts as preferable.

Boys and young men of Marion, however, are generally independent in their selection and still favor the three-button models, one local clothier stated. Three buttons were all the go during the last winter season.

The clothiers point out that practically all coats have roll lapels so that those with three buttons can easily be worn as two-button models should the wearer decide upon a change.

Suits generally are in plain patterns, although there is a wide range of stripes for those whose tastes run along that line. Herringbone weave and tweeds are shown among the different designs.

Plaids Rare

Plaids are a rarity although some suits of that type are on display.

Hats have narrower brims than those in vogue during the last few seasons. Comparatively few derbies are being shown for spring. Derbies, the clothiers say, are intended to be worn only when overcoats are a part of the attire.

Hats of a light shade are expected to be popular although tans and other colors of varying degrees are available to suit varying complexions and facial architecture.

Spring topcoats are somewhat longer than last year, ranging from 46 to 50 inches. The standard topcoat length is 44 inches. They are loose fitting and include a number of models with raglan shoulders.

Lighter Ties

Designers of neckwear are getting away from the stripes which have been worn in recent years and this spring the ties are generally in figured effects and of a lighter shade.

Although the trend this spring is toward the conservative in outer garments, there appears to be a movement in the other direction for shirts, socks and pajamas—yes, seasonal styles apply to pajamas as well as other wearables.

And such pajamas—yes, you would hardly think that a man would be able to quiet down enough to go to sleep in some of them. Stripes of many hues there are, colors that are colors. Such are the springtime pajamas. However, the man who likes more modulated sleeping garments may have them. They, too, are to be found at the Marion stores.

As for shirts, they, too, are available in all sorts of designs of a colorful variety, with stripes prevailing.

Still more stripes. That is the design liberally displayed among the fancy silk socks which are found in the local spring stocks. There are other varieties in these attractive displays, giving every opportunity of satisfaction for the man who wants to fit himself out properly from head to foot.

RAISE FUND

PLATES FOR $15.00 CAN IT BE DONE?

Why Certainly, other dentists make plates for $15.
So can I. I can do anything any other dentist can do.
If you only want $15.00 worth of plate, you don't have to look any farther. I make all kinds of plates all the way from $15.00 to $35.00.

Some people are interested in one question—
HOW CHEAP? And to meet this demand I make this $15.00 plate but I don't guarantee it, and I don't recommend it. It is as good a plate as any dentist can make for $15. But why should any one consider a $15 plate, when the best plate made costs less than a cent a day to own. Why look for something cheaper? One cent a day for fifteen years is just $54.75 and I will make you the best Rubber plate built for $35.00. And the best plate that any dentist can make is not any too good. At best they are not like natural teeth. A man once said that his false teeth reminded him of a wooden leg, and when asked in what way they resembled each other, he said, "Well with a wooden leg, if you get a real good one, you can walk all right but you won't dance much." So why not invest less than one cent a day and have one of my "Rugo-Suction" Semi-Metallic plates with real True-Bite Teeth. The finest plate made for only $35.00. Same without True-Bite teeth $25.00. But lower than this it is not safe to go; too much quality is sacrificed for the slight saving in money. And here is another thing to consider. Extractions are free where a deposit is made on either the $25.00 or $35.00 plate, while on the $15.00 plate the extractions are extra. So the best is the cheapest in the end. Everything considered.

$152.32.

Both claims are on accounts. The one filed by Haberman was originally

Dismissal Sought
Dismissal of a suit by Emma K.
Aikin, as guardian for William J. Koch, minor, is asked by the Watts-Kimble
Motor Co. on the claim that a contract involved in the suit is illegal under the laws of Utah, where it was drawn.

The suit, brought against E. E. Nash and the Watts-Kimble Co., is based on a contract in which Koch exchanged automobiles with the defendants and agreed to pay several hundred dollars in cash. His guardian seeks judgment in his behalf on the grounds that he was a minor and also that he was the victim of misrepresentation.

The Watts-Kimble Co., in its answer and cross petition filed yesterday, asserts that Koch represented himself to be 22 years of age. In Utah, where the transaction took place, the answer states, minors who misrepresent their age can not repudiate contracts. It is alleged further that contracts with minors in that state remain as a valid obligation until all property obtained by the minors through the contract has been restored. Such restoration has not been made in this case, the Watts-Kimble Co. states.

The answer and cross petition, was filed through Attorney W. P. Moloney.

Foul Shooting Tournament To Get Under Way Saturday

MARION STAR WILL OFFER BASKETBALL TO CONTEST WINNER

Promises To Be Greatest Event in History; 200 Kids Expected To Enter

Hey, kids! Here's the grand climax to the season's basketball. The Marion Star is going to stage a foul shooting tournament for all the boys of Marion County. The only requirement is that you be a grade school or junior high school pupil. Students of more than freshman high school rank will not be eligible.

Throughout the year basketball has been played with speed and vigor in Marion County. There have been scores of boys' teams. The game has been growing steadily in interest throughout the county and Marion County is no exception.

With this thought in mind The Star is conducting a foul shooting tournament. With the season nearly ended all school students should be artists at foul shooting.

The Star's tournament will get under way at 1 o'clock next Saturday afternoon in The Star Auditorium. It will continue throughout the week at 4 o'clock each afternoon except Tuesday, until Saturday, March 17, when it will begin at 1 o'clock and continue throughout the afternoon.

Official Regulation Ball
As an incentive to enter this tournament The Star will offer as a prize a first-class regulation basketball. This will go to the most perfect foul shooter. The entire tournament will be under the direction of the Sports Editor of The Star. On this page is an application blank which should be filled out and sent or brought to the Sports Editor in order that he will be able to arrange his schedules.

The following tentative schedule has been outlined:

Saturday: Central Junior, Vernon Heights and St. Mary's.

Monday: Glenwood, Forest Lawn, Davis Street and Olney Avenue.

Wednesday: Greenwood, Lincoln, Mark Street and Pearl Street.

Thursday: North Main Street, Oak Street and Oakland Heights.

Friday: State Street and Silver Street.

Saturday: Pupils from Marion County schools.

The plan followed will be to allow each entrant in the contest 25 free throws. His percentage of perfect throws will then be recorded and a standing of the contestants will be carried each night in The Star. In case of ties the ties will later be tossed off.

C. D. & M. CAGERS TO FIGHT FOR TITLE

Team After Pennant of Marion Industrial Basketball League

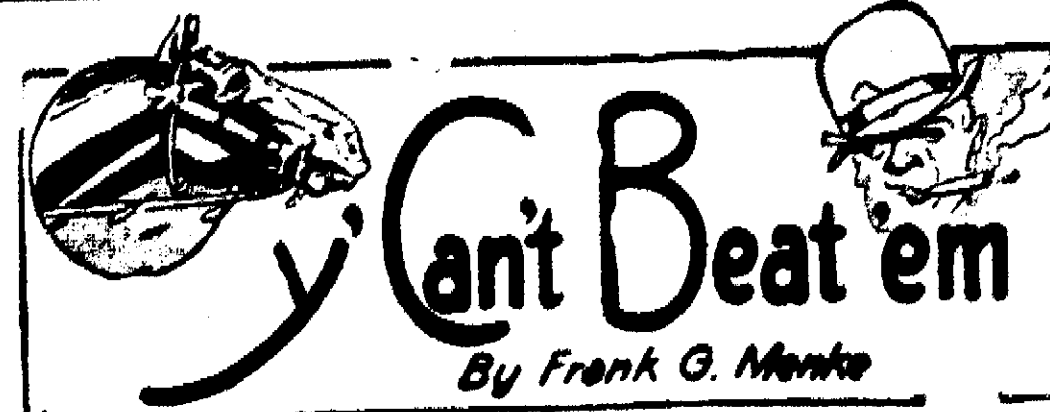

With the Business College cagers out of the running for the championship of the Marion Industrial league as a result of a series of reverses, the C. D. & M. cagers Thursday night will endeavor to keep within reach of the league title by defeating Huber.

Osgood Commercial, leaders of the league, are favored to keep their good standing when they meet Silk Mill-Gardner Tap quintet.

The other game on the program finds the American Malleable and Generator Excavator playing.

WOOSTER CAPTAIN

Wooster, March 7—Myles Deeler has been elected captain of the Wooster College basketball team for 1928-29. Deeler, who has been a regular for the past two seasons was the unanimous choice of his mates for the honor. He is a product of Wooster High and plays football, basketball and baseball.

This is the fifth—and final—of a series of articles by Frank G. Menke which reveal the inner workings of the bookmaking game and which are intended to show players why it is impossible for constant gamblers to beat the race.

The "handbook" men passed—and then resumed:
"Let me tell you another one that is a little bit different."
"You closing day at the Empire, N. Y. track, I was handed three tips by a jockey friend of mine with instructions to 'play 'em strong.' I never play a dollar of my own money. I just don't gamble. When I do any betting, it's with the 'sucker's' money, a game where I can't lose while I was keen on making the plunge on those three horses—First Dance, Account and Hypnotism—because I knew the horses were in shape to win and that the owners certainly were trying.

"All of a sudden I got an idea. I would influence some of the 'parlay suckers' to let me use their money to make a nice bankroll for myself. So when my agent went around collecting wagers and money for the day's operations, I told him to tip all my customers on those three horses—and to tip them strong."

"He made a good job of it, for he came back with six slips for six 'parlay suckers' who had played the three horses—First Dance, Account and Hypnotism—in a winning parlay. Gets Big Profile

The total of those six parlay plays was exactly $50. Inasmuch as I pay 10 to 1 limits on successful parlays at the New York tracks, it meant that if those $50 worth of parlays were successful, the most I would have to give my players was $3,200 profit, plus their original $50.

"No here was the nice chance to do a little parlaying for myself—with their money.

"I instructed my track agent to bet $80 on First Dance to win and, if he won, to throw it all on Account. First Dance won at 7 to 1, meaning winnings of $600. That, plus the stake of $80—a total of $680—was put on Account.

My man got 6 to 1 for his bet, meaning that the track bookmaker laid $3,680 against the $680. Account won, and my agent then had a total of $4,360 on hand.

"Once again I was sitting in a beautiful spot.

"If I made no more bets and Hypnotism lost, breaking the players' parlay, the entire $4,360 was mine. If Hypnotism won, completing the parlay, all I had to pay to my players was $3,200 winnings, plus their original $80, leaving me a net profit of exactly $1,200.

"But I had a strong hunch on Hypnotism. So I told my man to bet $2,000 on him. Had he lost, I still was $2,360 to the good, wasn't I, for I wouldn't have to pay anything to the players because the parlay was busted, and I had the $2,480 left of the $4,480.

"Hypnotism was 9 to 1 at the track and my man got $10,000 bet against his $2,000. Hypnotism won—and so I won $10,000 on that bet. The $10,000

TRIBE TRIO NEW TO FANS

Here are the newest of pictures of Cleveland's revamped ball team. To the right we have Grover Hartley, although well-known, he will look a bit different in Indian regalia as is evidenced with the coach at work on the rookies at New Orleans. Upper right shows Harold Heidelberg, a pitcher from Akron's semi-pros, and the lower right is of Frank Baumgartner, recruit catcher from Philadelphia.

Senator Stout and Watson B. are in the stable of C. E. Pittman, town, N. J. Their trainer is known as the Grand Circuit, is known as Senator Stout. But he needs half-mile tracks all of 1927 and his record of 2:08 1/2 in the second of a race at Malone, N. Y. Watts, Jr., has been a "wolf" on the half-mile tracks of the east for more than the whole and his record of 2:07 that sort of race course is evident in his ability.

Signal Spring, in the stable of Charles Lacey, North Randall, Ohio, but recently purchased by George Tipping of Cleveland. This signal spring started in nine races on western half-mile tracks, and won eight, dividing the other half-mile races in the other one with Harvester. # McGraw Has No Problem Around Second Base Of Giants

HORNSBY DEAL JUST FORTUNATE FOR HIS CLUB, MANAGER SAYS

Not a Longer Questioning Catching Good:
May Swing Deal

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

March 7.—Believing that the second base position was a good one for McGraw, I asked John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, whether he was going to deal for second base. He said he was not. I then asked him if he was going to deal for second base. He said he was not. I then asked him if he was going to deal for second base. He said he was not.

that he really is a major league infielder and he is hitting here with the frequency of his very impressive average in the 1927 International League race.

Ott First a Receiver.

Ott came out of Gretna, La., a few years ago as a 19-year-old catcher and apparently it has taken McGraw all this time to discover that the young man is as good as second base as the average man in the National League. He made a lot of amazing stops out there two days ago, which probably means that he will play left field whenever anybody is hurt. Ott looks too slow for second base. McGraw says he isn't. Just an honest difference of opinion between two major intellects.

The fact that Hornsby is one of the great second basemen of the generation and neither Cohen or Ott ever played the position speaks a mental statement too. It appeared that the other master mind was willing to stand behind his record for shifting men strategically.

Friess came to us as a shortstop," he pointed out. "Heinie Grob also was a short fielder. Jack Murray was a catcher. So was Spaulding. Ross Young thought he was a second baseman and even Matty once esteemed himself at first base. I cite these examples at random. We have many more and all of them support my contention that a good ball player can play almost anywhere. Both Cohen and Ott are good ball players."

Merely Fortunate Circumstance

The Hornsby trade was made by Stoneham, he said, regardless of whether the club had a man to replace Rogers. It merely was a fortunate circumstance, it appeared, that the club did have such a man.

This, however, being just about all the horsebrow we can use today, it might be mentioned here that the tip in camp is that McGraw may try to swing a deal for a National League second baseman counting games won and lost. Cohen looks surprisingly good and Andy Reese, the Tule, Miss. citizen, can do a utility man's best in a pinch but McGraw, when he throws away his gumpdops, will tell you that a man of real major league experience would irritate him very little.

This questionable position is the ball club, by the way. It is a good team with a good second baseman and a bad team with a bad one. Frank Hogan, the spacious young man from Somerville, Mass., obtained in the Hornsby deal, will be the best catcher the Giants have sponsored in recent years, McGraw says. Jack Cummings, 1927 regular, is the second catcher and probably Bill Barrett, or Savannah and Memphis, will be the third. His hitting has taken the play away from Al Spohrer, up from Wilkes Barre and probably down again.

Pitchers Veterans

Vic Aldridge, Virgil Barnes, Larry Benton and Fred Fitzsimmons, veterans all, are on the pitching staff, although Dutch Henry will left-hand the situation on odd occasions. He has a few companionate recruits with him at the moment. They are Jim Faulkner, the Californian, up from Fort Smith, and Bill Walker, of Denver and St. Louis. The latter was the strike-out king of the minors last year and is very highly esteemed at this juncture, if that means anything.

Ned Porter, Ben Cantwell and Hank Boney, right-handers from Florida, also are on the lot. Cantwell is presumed to be the best prospect. Jim Chaplin, up from Jersey City, is another right-hander from Florida, which always was a smart state, anyhow. Then there is Jack Levy, of Birmingham and Charlotte, the man with three deliveries, none of which have looked too good to date.

In fact, then, which means McGraw, think more of Leo Mangum, of Buffalo and Lima, Ohio, than most of the recruit right-handers on the premises. Leo, once was up with the White Sox, which may be quite a recommendation for all I know. Chester Nichols, of Woonsocket, R. I., drafted from Jersey City, may soon be back with either or both.

Infield Set

The infield is presumed to be "set," with Fred Lindstrom, supposed recovered from an injured back, on third base; Travis Jackson at short, Cohen at second and Memphis Bill Terry at first. Reese will be first to left hand, which means that Baxter Jordan, Charlotte shortstop, and Buck Lutz, the Oriental from Audubon, N. J., probably soon will be themselves hence. C. R. Crawford, Greenville, S. C., is coaching college baseball and hasn't reported yet.

Mr. Edward Roush will left-hand his way into camp soon to play centerfield for two sets of outfielders. Against right hand pitching, which means five days a week, he will range between George Harper, veteran, and Frank O'Doul, up again from the coast league. "They say Frank can't miss this time. On left-hand pitching days, Art Jahn, another coast leaguer, and Leslie Mann, the well-known grandfather, will flank Roush.

Jim Welsh, the other part of the Hornsby deal, and Mel Ott may break in from time to time with the left-hand outfielders but Chick Fullis, of Macon and Girardville, Pa., probably hasn't quite come to a boil yet. Charles, however, will be back as soon as he learns exactly what it is all about.

Two of the holes in the new championship golf course to be constructed for the Woodside Country Club of San Francisco, will be replicas of famous holes at St. Andrews and Hoylake.

West Coast Grid Teams Lay Plans For Season

San Francisco, March 7.—Pacific Coast college football men are already laying their plans for the coming season, which gets under way on Sept. 20.

The coaches of last year, as far as it is known here, will all be back on the job at their respective schools in 1928, although a sensitive ear can occasionally tune in on those rumblings of the disgruntled alumni which give a coach a pain in the neck and sometimes the opportunity of looking for a new job.

However, at this time, the coaches along the Coast seem to have their situations well in hand and the "master minds" are getting away to a running start, which is probably more than some of their teams will do.

Open on Sept. 20

California, which ended 1927 in the well advertised blaze of glory by triumphing Pennsylvania by a decisive score, jumps into the fray on Sept. 20 against Santa Clara. A week later the Bears play St. Mary's. Both of these teams from Stanford last year, so it is these "brethren" they are quite likely to be "hard" ones.

Stanford and Oregon clash on Oct. 6, which means the Cards are not saying all the tough ones for the tag end of the season. This also goes for Oregon State and Southern California, who play on the same date.

The following Saturday, Washington State will play California at Berkeley. This game will be an innovation for the fans in these parts, as ordinarily these two teams do not meet.

One of the "naturals" will be played on Oct. 20, when the Bruins of Southern California journey to Berkeley to play California. Inasmuch as the brilliant Drury will not be with Southern California next year, and with the Bears showing signs last year of developing into a first class aggregation, California rosters figure that the Sons of Troy are due to take one on the job in this particular game.

While the lads from Southern California are battling at Berkeley, Washington and Oregon will be settling scores at Portland.

Two weeks later Warner's Stanford team will meet Howard Jones' Trojans at Los Angeles. This probably will be one of the outstanding contests of the season on the Coast, as the two teams split honors in the Pacific Coast conference last year.

To Invade Northwest

California will invade the Northwest on Nov. 10, to play Bagshaw's Huskies. The following week the Huskies will come into California, to meet Stanford at Palo Alto.

A week later California and Stanford will settle their annual differences.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At Portland, Me.—Frankie Genaro, recognized as flyweight champion by the National Boxing Association, awarded newspaper decision over Duke Menard, Biddford, Me. (12).

At Toronto—George Fife, Canadian welterweight champion, won decision over Sailor Friedman, Chicago (8).

Eddie Speake, Louisville, Ky., outpointed Tommy Mitchell, Toronto light-weight (8).

At Paris—George Cook, Australian, outpointed Moise Bouquillon, French light-heavyweight champion (10).

At New York—Phil McGraw, Detroit light-weight, drew with Bobby Burns, Brooklyn (10).

Levi Kersch, New York light-weight, outpointed Tommy Gervel, Sheboygan, Pa. (6).

Bert Stauley, English featherweight, defeated Lou Lambert, New York (6).

Willie Feldman, New York middle-weight, won decision over Pierre Gandon, of France (6).

Vincent Sanchez, New York, outpointed Carlos Martinez, Chilean light-weight (6).

WHITE SOX TO PLAY ON WAY FROM SOUTH IN EXHIBITION GAMES

Will Open Season Against Cleveland at Chicago on April 11

Chicago, March 7.—When the Chicago White Sox take the field here April 11 against Cleveland in the opening game of the season, Chicago fans will center their attention on two winners of the white Sox.

One will be the revamped manager, Ray Schalk, and the other Chalmers W. Chase, purchased from the Portland club of the Pacific coast league at a fancy figure. He is believed to be a sensational shortstop.

Schalk, after an unsatisfactory year as manager in 1927, is getting a boost from the fact that he was named for his past work in the past. Schalk is said this season to be determined to take a Simon Legree role and strict discipline will mark his 1928 reign.

Full obedience to all rules will be demanded by Manager Schalk this season and he is reported to have warned some of the players they will be instantly dismissed for the slightest infraction of regulations.

Ceschell, 21 years old and a resident of St. Louis, had a batting average of .323 and a fielding average of .921 last year with Portland. He is five feet nine inches tall and weighs 160 pounds.

The Sox will leave their training camp at Shreveport, La., on March 10. Enroute home the Sox will play exhibition games in Fort Worth, Wichita Falls and Dallas, Texas, Memphis, Indianapolis and Springfield, Ill.

SCORE TIED

Victor Gillis Equals Record Set By Cheney

The record of 38 shots made out of a possible 45 was tied last night by Victor Gillis in the Y. M. C. A. foul journey. The previous high score in the Junior Division was made by Albert Cheney.

Other scores by Juniors last night were: Lowell Haberman, 17; Salvador Brana, 22; Donald Williamson, 27; Lowell Buck, 12; Rizzo, 26; Merkel, 34; Lockwood, 27; William Roush, 25; Gillis, 38.

TENNIS STAR DEAD

Charlottesville, Mich., March 7.—W. Gordon Parker, former amateur tennis star, is dead today from a self-inflicted bullet wound. It is presumed he was despondent over ill health. He leaves a widow and five children. Parker was at one time among the 10 ranking amateur tennis players of the United States.

RECEIVES PACER

Cleveland, March 7.—Vic Fleming, the noted North Randall teamster, has received the good four-year-old pacer, Allan, a son of the former champion, Arion Guy, 1:50 1/2, in his stable here. This performer raced on western Pennsylvania half-mile tracks last year and fared well against aged company.

NOT SO BAD

Ruth Opens Practice With Six Long Wallops

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7.—An swering criticism that he's devoted to golf would impair his ability to hit home runs, Ruth inaugurated his season's training by smacking six wallops into Crescent Lake, outside the training park of the New York Yankees here. Several rockers could not count their month when Ruth missed the ball entirely, whereupon the Bambino stopped to the pitcher's box and fanned several of the Yankees.

SEASON TO OPEN

Indoor Track Athletes Meet Ohio Wesleyan Saturday

Wesleyan, March 7.—The indoor track season for Wesleyan College athletes will open Saturday, March 10, when Coach L. C. Bales and Johnny Swigart will take the Wesleyan team to Delaware to meet Ohio Wesleyan.

Although track prospects at Wesleyan are fair, the squad has little chance for a win over the powerful Buckeye champs. Wesleyan's strength will lie in the shorter races and the mile relay.

I. S. Barnard, the successor of Ben Johnson as president of the American League, was at one time head of the Western Association.

During the last decade only four big league players—Cobb, Sider, Hornsby and Heilmann—have batted .400 or over.

INDIANA CAGERS IN PLACE AT HEAD OF BIG TEN STANDINGS

Clinches Position by Defeating Illinois in Overtime Contest at Champaign

Champaign, Ill., March 7.—Indiana clinched its place at the top of the final Big Ten basketball standings by beating Illinois here last night in the last game of the season. The score was 27 to 24, but the Illini forced them into an extra period before the Hoosiers could carry off the verdict.

Should the unexpected happen, meaning a victory for Minnesota over Purdue in the first game of the season Saturday at Lafayette, Indiana will be in undisputed possession of the championship. If Purdue wins, the Badmackers and Indiana will share equally in first place honors.

The 1921 team scored by the Boston Nationals in 1904 still stands as the major league high record.

'Welcome Stranger'

(says the girl on the La Palina box)

"Let me introduce you to a new conception of how good a cigar can taste. It's not what I say that counts. It's the praise of the thousands of men who each day buy the cigars named for me. They are enthusiastic—and rightly—for La Palina is the outstanding cigar value of the country."
